JUSTICE IN REAL TIME: A PROPOSAL FOR FULL TRANSPARENCY IN ONGOING TRIALS OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS”

AUTHORED BY - T.BHARATH & MATHANACHANDIRAN.B

1. ABSTRACT (SUMMARY OVERVIEW)

The project examines two interconnected modern legal concerns—digital exploitation (especially of women and children) and the need for transparency in judicial proceedings, particularly in trials involving public officials.

With the rapid growth of digital technologies, new forms of cyber exploitation such as online harassment, grooming, and image-based abuse have emerged. These crimes are often complex, anonymous, and transnational, making enforcement difficult. At the same time, there is increasing demand for transparency in the justice system, especially in cases involving public figures, to ensure accountability and public trust.

The study critically analyzes existing legal frameworks, judicial interpretations, and enforcement challenges. It concludes that a multi-dimensional approach combining legal reforms, technological tools, and awareness is essential for both combating digital exploitation and ensuring transparent justice delivery.

2. INTRODUCTION

2.1 Background

Justice is a fundamental pillar of democracy. The judiciary ensures rule of law, protection of rights, and accountability of public officials. Traditionally, courts follow the principle of open justice, allowing public access to proceedings.

However, in reality:

Access is limited

Media reporting is selective

Public awareness is incomplete

This creates a gap between justice delivered and justice perceived.

2.2 Concept of Open Justice

Open justice ensures:

Transparency

Accountability

Public confidence

But physical court access is no longer sufficient in the digital age. Therefore, real-time transparency (live streaming, digital access) is proposed as an extension of this principle.

2.3 Need for Transparency in Trials of Public Officials

- Public officials must be held to higher accountability because:
- They exercise public power
- Their actions affect society
- Lack of transparency leads to:
- Misinformation
- Media manipulation
- Loss of trust
- Real-time transparency ensures:
- Direct public access
- Reduced reliance on media
- Improved accountability

2.4 Role of Technology

- Technological advancements like:
- Live streaming
- Digital courts
- Online judgments

have already started transforming the judiciary. However, concerns like privacy, misuse, and infrastructure limitations must be addressed.

2.5 Constitutional Perspective

- Article 19(1)(a) → Right to information
- Article 21 → Right to fair trial

- Thus, a balance is required between:
- Transparency
- Fair trial rights
